The shepherd, now older and wiser, comes to Indiana and he meets you and your friend. He then asks about what he can share with the people of Indiana that might be interesting and useful. In French, you and your friend need to:

1. Decide what you would like to have the shepherd share with the people, for example how he felt as he first tried the moldy cheese, or how he developed a world-famous cheese from what was essentially a mistake.
2. Compare your favorite cheeses with Roquefort, and discuss how they are similar and how they are different.
3. Choose how you are going to express your appreciation to the shepherd for his time speaking with you.

Prompt: After the shepherd leaves, you decide to write a letter in French thanking him and the country of France for their influence on cheese worldwide. Your letter should include the following:

1. A formal greeting explaining why you are writing.
2. An explanation of the importance of cheese in Indiana and the United States.
3. Besides eating it plain, indicate at least two other ways in which cheese is used in food and cooking.
